A high-speed graphics chip typically costs $25. A new "light" version of the chip costs $15, saving $10 per chip.

If a computer company purchases 3000 chips per quarter for use in their video cards, what is the present worth of the savings over a 2-year period at an interest rate of 16% per year compounded quarterly?